Artist Statement

Concerned about the lives of many sea turtles and the issue of sea turtles being endangered by human activities, these marine reptiles deserve to have their stories known globally. As they are one of the mascots representing marine life, there is a need to make people, who live on land, understand better marine life, which most people are ignorant of as they are not inhabitants of the oceans and are just tourists visiting the unknown part of their planet.

Therefore, this website was created as a narrative to enlighten society about these wonderful creatures that can live on both land and water, in hope that we can learn more about the struggle these sea turtles are being put through. In these tales about sea turtles, there will be four of their kinds representing their species to tell a story about themselves and why they are endangered. Accordingly, one would expect that we take something out of this learning matter and co-exist with our biodiversity, rather than destroying it. It would be a tragic marking event to have another species turning into fossils and we would not want to see that happening, especially in the 21st century.
